You require a LAN cable and a personal user account for the University of Greifswald to access the data network in the hall of residence.

§ 5 Nutzungsordnung (University Computer Centre's Terms of Use) grounds: visiting academic) prior to their stay.

Device Configuration

You have to connect your device to the university's data network using our central DHCP server. Descriptions for several operating systems can be found on the following website:

This is required for being able to login to the data network at the student hall of residence.

To activate your account, you must first change your initial password.

To do so, login to the account management with your login details and click on the menu item

'Change password'. Having changed your password, it can take up to an hour after before you will be able to login to the data network in the student hall of residence.
